

The Domaine des Béroles, across which runs the route to Santiago de Compostella, is situated in the village of Cesset at the foot of the little chapel "Saint Barthélémy".

The cultivation of wines was implemented by Odile and Olivier Teissèdre in 1989 on the old "Clos de Berioles" which had been there since 1809. The small family estate started with 3 hectares of vine situated on argilo-calcareous slopes.

In 2010, the property extends over 7 hectares with the white grape varieties Chardonnay and Tressalier. The latter is a local variety that is typical of the white wines of Saint Pourçain. The Gamay, grown on granitic land, and the Pinot Noir on the argilo-calcareous soil, are the varieties used for developing the estate's red wines.

In 2011, the Domaine des Béroles opened the doors of its wine cellar in a beautiful Bourbonnais building where the property's wines are vinified and matured by Jean Teissèdre, graduate in oenology.

After having lived the wonderful experiences of the Mâconnais, the Crus de Beaujolais and the Sancerrois, the young wine-maker has come back to the family estate to share his passion with friends in a warm and convivial environment.
